"Arson tried to grab him before his face hit the dirt, but it was too late. "Don't touch me. This is where I belong." "Fine." Arson shrugged, lying down beside him on the ground. "What are you doing?" "Helping you," Arson said, placing his hands behind his head. "The first session's free." — Estevan Vega, Arson review 1: Talk about unusual. Arson has a gift / curse: he can start fires with his mind. But this is much more than a paranormal story. Estevan Vega pulls you into the secrets of his family, and they are dark. It was fascinating to be part of his life, especially as he gets to know his neighbor, a girl who wears a mask.

Estevan Vega (Author of Arson) - Goodreads

ARSON, by Estevan Vega, was an exceptional story about a peculiar boy and his remarkable gift of creating fire with his mind. Vega took my mind right out of its comfort zone and threw me for a loop with this amazing story. What I loved more than anything about this book were the main characters, Arson and Emery.
