SUNSTRIKE Douglas Livingstone. A solitary prospector staggered, locked in a vision of slate hills that capered on the molten horizon. Waterless, he came to where a river had run, now a band flowing only in ripples of white unquenchable sand. Cursing, he dug sporadically here, here, as deep as his arm, and sat quite still, eyes thirstily

"Kubla Khan" is definitely a poem as much about the journeys of the mind and the imagination as it is about the real world. If this is partly an imaginary landscape, how does the poem's speaker make it look and feel? When he talks about "caverns measureless to man" we get a sense that this landscape is both huge and unknowable.
