Even we feel lost most of the time. We're all just trying to navigate our way through life the best way we can, but truth is though we seldom admit it, we become lost. In "There's No Place Like Here" we see an imaginative world where all missing things go. It felt like nowhere but really was somewhere. It was simply called 'Here'.

I finished A Place Called Here in 2 sittings, and, even though I found the start to be a little slow, in the end, I was flying through the pages at an alarming rate. I just could not put it down, as I really needed to find out how it ended. I know now that I will not be afraid to pick up other works by this author.

A Place Called Here {Cecelia Ahern} - Her Book Affair

One day Sandy wanders down a jogging trail and winds up in a place called Here, where missing things and people go. She meets several people she had been searching for and finds that thousands of lost people have made a life for themselves in Here. The plot is interesting, original and so different that I couldn't stop reading.
