A Philosophy of Walking by Frédéric Gros - Goodreads

'A Philosophy of Walking,' by Frédéric Gros 'A Philosophy of Walking,' by Frédéric Gros. Gros is in search of higher truths than those found in libraries: "There are thoughts that can only occur at 6,000 feet above the plains and mournful shores," he rightly points out, and if his prose gets a bit purple from time to time, maybe it's because it was composed on one of those peaks where the oxygen's a bit thin.

A Philosophy of Walking is an essential book for anyone who believes in the meditative properties of walking, and it's a must-read for creatives seeking out new approaches to their work. As Gros says, "when you are walking, there is only one sort of performance that counts: the brilliance of the sky, the splendour of the landscape."

Review: "A Philosophy of Walking" by Frederic Gros ...

A Philosophy of Walking Quotes. "None of your knowledge, your reading, your connections will be of any use here: two legs suffice, and big eyes to see with. Walk alone, across mountains or through forests. You are nobody to the hills or the thick boughs heavy with greenery. You are no longer a role, or a status, not even an individual,...
