While reading Anywhere but Here, I chuckled, I groaned, and I shook my head and wanted to knock sense into Cole. I cringed and felt his pain, especially as he hides his innermost feelings. With only a father who's on a year bender, there's no family for him to turn to. Cole keeps screwing up---until the end.

- Cole from Anywhere But Here by Tanya Lloyd Kyi, pages 258-259 "Seems like life doesn't have a documentary ending. In fact, it's possible that my bleak film, bundled into its manila envelope, has entirely the wrong conclusion. It turns out that Webster isn't necessarily the problem and escaping isn't the answer.
