Before the glare o' dawn I rise To milk the sleepy cows, an' shake The droving dust from tired eyes,
Look round the rabbit traps, then bake The children's bread. There's hay to stook, an' beans to hoe,
An' ferns to cut in the scrub below, Women must work, when men must go Shearing from shed to shed.
I patch an' darn, now evening comes, An' tired I am with labour sore, Tired o'

If we examine this poem, we will see it is about a shearer's wife alone but for her children on a small outback holding. She lists all the chores that occupy her day by day and how she fills in her evenings. She is tired and lonely but resigned to her lot of waiting and keeping house while her husband is away droving.
